

Whose land is it anyway?

Baked Alaska

You are an Inupiat Eskimo and are in favour of the proposals to drill for oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR).

After watching the video clip, your group will put together an argument in support of the proposals. Use these prompt questions to help you – write down the answers as you watch the clip.

Baked Alaska

1 What percentage are in favour of the proposals?

2 How will you and your community benefit?

For example More funding for.....?

3 What do Arctic Power do to convince people that the drilling will have no effect on the caribou?

4 How much money does the oil industry generate each year?

5 What percentage of the local income comes from oil and gas?

6 How much money does each man, woman and child receive from oil profits each year?

7 Why should you pump your own oil and not import from abroad?

Make any additional notes of your own here

Whose land is it anyway?

Baked Alaska

You are a Gretchen Indian and are firmly against the proposals to drill for oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR).

After watching the video clip your group will put together an argument against these proposals. Use these prompt questions to help you – write down the answers as you watch the clip.

Baked Alaska

1 Why do you call yourself caribou people?

2 How many caribou converge on the coastal plains each year?

3 What is the job of Ian Thomas?

4 What did the map show?

5 What happened to him?

6 What effect would the drilling have on your lifestyle?

7 How does the Eskimo Indian feel about the drilling?

8 Why should the drilling not go ahead?

Make any additional notes of your own here